

In August, the Pastor Search committee unanimously identified one applicant as our “first preference candidate.” For us, this means that, until a reason arises for the committee to reconsider this decision or the candidate withdraws from consideration, the committee will move forward with the mindset that this may be the candidate God is calling to be LPC’s next Pastor. In this regard, committee members recently met in-person with the candidate and his spouse to get to know each other better.

The coming weeks will be a time of prayerful discernment and practical considerations as candidate and committee continue to listen carefully for confirmation of God’s call. Please continue praying with us through this process.
